Investment Sense extends its independent best buy tables

Investment Sense has expanded the range of best buy savings accounts featured on their website to include accounts available for SIPP's.

The best buy tables are 100% independent and unbiased, and fill a gap in the information currently available to consumers.

Anna Timms, Director said "We noticed that this sort of information was not easily available in one place for consumers or indeed financial advisers. Once we realised this it seemed logical to add these types of accounts to the existing ones that we publish on our website.

With investors becoming more and more nervous about the markets we are seeing a flight to caution. Which, despite low interest rates, is meaning more money held in SIPP's is being invested deposit accounts. Furthermore in these times of low interest rates the tables will certainly help our clients and visitors to our website make their money work harder for them, which is our aim."

The tables represent a real breakthrough for SIPP investors, information on deposit accounts available for SIPP's has traditionally been hard to find, and the information now provided on our website really will help SIPP investors make their money work harder.

The tables can be found by following the links below:
